Risk Level: MODERATE
Recommendation: NOT_RECOMMENDED

No summary available.

Section 2: Three Persona Analysis

Consumer Advocate

N/A

Confidence: N/A

Reasoning:
As the Consumer Advocate, my analysis reveals significant concerns despite a high Google rating. The business presents as a large, established building materials retailer (Builders Surplus Yee Haa) with a 4.8 Google rating from 100+

Fair Arbiter

N/A

Confidence: N/A

Reasoning:
The analysis reveals a business with strong positive signals but also legitimate concerns that require context. On the positive side, the business has a substantial and authentic customer base, evidenced by 100+ Google reviews and 204 Yelp reviews, resulting in

Synthesizer

Stronger Case:

reviews. However, the evidence shows a pattern of serious customer service and operational failures. The most damning evidence is the detailed 1-star Google review from 'arsheen littlejohn' describing a sales error (wrong door handedness), refusal to take accountability, and unprofessional conduct by manager 'Tim Buck' including calling the customer names, hanging up, and looking up their workplace—behavior that suggests intimidation. This aligns with a Google News result labeling the business a 'Total scam' and stating 'Not a place where you will save money.' While the REVIEW_ANALYSIS concludes reviews appear authentic and notes common complaint patterns (product quality, incorrect specs, pricing), this validates that the negative experiences are real and recurring. The absence from BBB, Angi, and other verification platforms is a red flag for a business of this apparent size; it suggests they may not engage with formal complaint resolution channels. The business model ('surplus/closeout') high average ratings (4.8 Google, 4.3 Yelp). The REVIEW_ANALYSIS tool found the reviews to be overwhelmingly authentic, with specific mentions of staff (Tim, Augustin, Jaimie, Ridge) and detailed project descriptions. The business has a physical address, phone number, and a functional website indicating a legitimate retail operation. The absence of BBB complaints, court records, liens, and regulatory violations (EPA, OSHA) is a significant positive, suggesting no major legal or compliance issues. The charitable interpretation of the red flags is as follows: 1) The lack of an LLC registration (TX_SOS_SEARCH, OPEN_CORPORATES) could mean the business operates as a sole proprietorship or DBA, which is legal and common for smaller/local businesses. The missing data from these sources may be due to database limitations or search errors, not deception. 2) The negative Google review detailing a door specification error and poor manager response is a legitimate concern, but it is one detailed inherently carries higher risk of defects and 'as-is' sales, which, when combined with the reported adversarial customer service, creates substantial homeowner risk. The positive reviews are specific and name staff, but they do not negate the severe issues documented in the negative experiences. The lack of court records or liens is positive but does not offset the direct customer testimony.

Key Concerns:

Serious customer service failure documented: Manager allegedly called a customer names, hung up, and looked up their workplace after a sales error., Pattern of complaints about incorrect products/specifications being provided, leading to additional costs for customers., Business labeled a 'Total scam' in a third-party Google News result, indicating broader reputation issues., Absence from major professional platforms (BBB, Angi) suggests lack of engagement with formal complaint resolution., Inherent risk of 'surplus/closeout' business model: higher complaint among over 100 positive reviews. The surplus/closeout business model inherently carries a higher risk of product defects or specification mismatches, which may explain some complaints.

3) The Google News result labeling the business a 'scam' is an unverified snippet from a non-authoritative site (shop.themugsusa.com) and should be weighed against the volume of positive, specific reviews from other platforms. 4) The absence from Angi, HomeAdvisor, and Houzz is not unusual for a building materials retailer (supplier) versus a hands-on contractor (service provider). The business appears to be a well-established local supplier with generally satisfied customers, though potential buyers should be aware of the inherent risks of the surplus model and verify specifications carefully.

Positive Factors:

likelihood of product defects and 'as-is' sales terms.

Points of Agreement

N/A

Points of Disagreement

N/A

Section 3: Red Flags

HIGH

Detailed customer review alleges a manager called a customer names, hung up on them, and looked up their workplace information after a sales error, indicating potentially intimidating and unprofessional conflict resolution practices.

MEDIUM

Business entity (LLC/Corporation) status and franchise tax standing could not be verified via Texas state databases, suggesting operation as a sole proprietorship/DBA, which offers less consumer protection and financial transparency.

MEDIUM

No profile found with the Better Business Bureau (BBB), which is unusual for a business of this apparent scale and limits formal, third-party complaint resolution avenues.

LOW

Third-party snippet labels the business a 'Total scam' and 'Not a place where you will save money,' though the source is unverified.

Section 4: Human Annotator Worksheet can't absorb the cost. It's not my error its theirs as their new employee sold is the wrong door. I would like my 200.00 back . On top of that my front door has 6 in jams and we were sold 4 in jams and the surplus store said they would have to customize the door and it would cost more ...they never asked us about the jams...now we have to pay 220.00 to the contractors to build out the door jams 2 inches Total of 420.00 and the surplus store is not taking accountable. They are only willing to give us the correct door.\n\nThis morning Tim called and was very upset as I voiced my concerns via the BBB site and now refusing to change out my door...he called me out of my name and hung up in my face.\n\nHe also mentioned where I worked which make me very uncomfortable that he is looking me up\n\nUpdate- his door guy was not involved at all with this door.\n.he gave us advice on another door. He was so upset I voiced my opinion to BBB ...just take a look at some of there other reviews and those will speak for themselves.\n\nPull our bathroom. We inspected it to be sure it was ok, but all the glass was completely covered in a sticky covering. We left that as it would protect the glass from the stain and polyurethane. Well, we got it all finished, took the covering off the glass and discovered one of the pieces was installed backwards!

So, all the matte sides face one way except for one and it's the smooth glossy side. You can see in the pic, the second piece from the top is shiny and the rest are matte. It doesn't look absolutely horrible, but I'm not too happy about it. I don't know how often this happens, but IF we ever buy another door from here, we will be sure to completely remove all coverings and inspect it thoroughly", quality, dimensions for only $99 when it was $220 at Builder Surplus. Spoke to a kind of shady business tactics does not stand by their products and offer returns

"text": "If you want the poorest quality doors around you can buy from them. They evidently have no quality assurance program . I bought eight doors for a small remodel I was doing. One of the doors did not have the striker cut and was missing the top bump stop trim. And two others were cut in the wrong location. The knob and striker plate location didn't match. So I had to fill their wrong cuts with high performance wood filler and recut them to make them work. I removed all the doors to spray paint them . And when I went back to reinstall them. The doors that were the same size wouldn't interchange because the central hinges were all cut at different locations. Just trash work. I bought two double doors and one of them was damaged at the top corner. And when you buy doors from them supposedly you can get a 10% discount on the knobs. So they didn't have all the doors in stocks I needed and when I came to pick up the ordered doors they would not give me the discount for the knobs since I didn't include that at the time of original purchase. The knobs were a dollar a piece cheaper at home depot anyway and they were better quality knobs with an interior lock. They were very rude when I asked for the discount. And when I said the doors were not built correctly I expected at least some sort of concession for my time to rework them . I wasn't expecting much, maybe $10.00 a door and I would have been appeased. They said straight out bring it back in and they would replace it. That was the only option. I've already set those doors. I didn't expect to have to do their quality inspection before setting them or i would not have set them. They wouldn't work with the situation one ounce. I would never recommend buying from them to anyone. And I will never do business with them again. They definitely don't care about making their customers happy. This was the location on Belknap in Fort Worth Texas.",

"text": "My husband, Stephen and I bought the tile for our updated shower from them. No help in assisting us in finding the tile, just a point in the direction outside where it was. That can be overlooked, however, we bought a 72\" granite countertop for our vanity. It was in a section with discounted countertops leaned against a rack. We ask the gentlemen helping us if the countertop we picked out was 50% off as well. He sheepishly said, well it would be marked if it was. He pulled it out of the group of counters. He didn't even inspect it or go over with us the care of it or anything. As we checked out, we ask the cashier if it was 50% off since it was in the group that was. She said, it would be marked. So we purchased assuming we had a new granite piece for our bathroom vanity. The gentlemen helped load it in the pickup. That was it! My husband put padding around it and secured it better. We drove the 8 miles home on the back roads, never going over 35mph. We had professional installers unload it from the truck and install on our vanity. The vanity had glue on it ready for the granite install. When the installer went to clean off the top, he found 3 cracks in it. Two had chunks missing. You can imagine how disappointed we were that the top was damaged and the glue was already there. Or we would have taken it back immediately! We called Builders Surplus to let them know the granite was damaged. They told us to send pictures in which we did and we explained our dilemma. We would never have bought the countertop (even at 50% off) with these cracks in it. We have received no correspondence from them at all. In my email I told them I felt that though they sold the countertop as a new countertop and there was cracks in it, we should be compensated for at least 50% off. We are going to have to find someone who can repair the cracks. We also feel that an employee should go over the items, noting any damage. Yes, I know it is a Builders Supply and I'm not a builder, but they are open to the public, so therefore should cater to them as well. I do not recommend this place at all, unless perhaps you are a very experienced builder and know all the right questions to ask, and the procedure in assuring yourself that you are buying a new item that is not damaged.",
